

The Warning Signs of Childhood Cancer

Only 10-20% of childhood cancers are diagnosed in Africa, most being diagnosed late!

If your child has a white spot in their eye, an unexplained lump or swelling, a fever lasting more than two weeks, loss of weight/appetite, sore bones, vomiting/headache that lasts more than a week, then you should have them checked out by a doctor.

It could be serious, It could be cancer.

Although we cannot cure all cancers we have a better chance if they are caught early.
